Brief Introduction

The Institute Of Leadership For Policy Implementation (ILPI) is an intellectual and pan-Nigeria non-governmental, non-political, and non-religious civil society organization certified under the Companies and Allied Matters Act 1990 as CAC LTD/GTE 1609397 in Nigeria. It is registered with various federal government ministries, departments, and agencies, affiliated with the United Nations, and headquartered in Abuja, Federal Capital Territory.

Historical Background

Preamble

No doubt, Providence has benevolently located Nigeria in one of the greenest belts of the global space, endowed with a multiplicity of abundant highly valued natural resources. And Nigeria is not bereft of good policy formulation.

But it is rather a paradox that in spite of all these development enablers, Nigeria, several decades after independence, is still globally perceived as a potentially great nation, instead of boldly taking advantage of her huge endowments to significantly transmute to a truly great nation.

She remains lean in physical and psychomotor-based human capital development. Besides, she is also terribly short in major indices of global competitiveness taken for granted in far less endowed but better led climes.

It was against this backdrop, driven by patriotic zeal, that some like-minded Nigerians cutting across the country, namely Associate Professor Tope Alabi, Alhaji Muhammad Abdulmumini Dada, Professor A.N Akwanya, Engr. Nwokolo S.P, Dr Bulus Baba Samuel, Engr. Emeka Nwokolo, and Chief Dr Mrs Gloria Laraba Shoda mni,MFR, met on several occasions in the closing quarter of 2018 to brainstorm on the possibility of corporately contributing towards changing the ugly national narrative.

Agenda Setting

Following those initial meetings the group of 7, who later became the subscribers/directors of the emergent institute, set the stage for discussions on the appropriate agenda to:

- 1. Identify the critical factors responsible for the unacceptable national paradox;
- 2. Form and incorporate an organized platform bearing a name that tells the story of its purpose, goals, and values at a glance, and capable of contributing meaningfully, in liaison with the government (the policy formulators and implementers) to the reversal of the tearful paradox in all facets of our national life;
- 3. Clearly spell out the envisaged organization's objectives, mandate, vision, mission, motto, and core values;
- 4. Work out initial and sustainable funding sources;
- 5. Set up an operational base (office) in Abuja, FCT; and
- 6. Set up a lean but experienced, effective, and result-oriented management team charged with the day-to-day management of the organization in tandem with its clearly defined purpose, goals, and values.

Guided by the 6-point agenda, the group's subsequent brainstorming sessions and wide consultations became more focused and fruitful, leading to the concrete realization of the overall dream of establishing the institute. For instance, in the process, compromised leadership and poor policy implementation were identified as the two critical factors responsible for Nigeria's unimpressive developmental trajectory, despite her huge and diverse endowments.

Satisfied with this valid discovery, supported by the established fact that the fundamental duty of leadership in any geo-polity the world over is summarily encapsulated in policy formulation and policy implementation, and roundly aligning with the time-honoured tacit agreement among all schools of thought in the subject of Leadership, which states that everything rises or falls on leadership, the group reasoned that the formulation of the envisaged organized platform for the intended trend reversal should necessarily reflect the operational key words – leadership and policy implementation – in its nomenclature, objects, vision, mission, motto, mandate, and core values.

However, realizing that as an organization, we can neither formulate nor implement policies with which the overall national scheme of things are governed or navigated, we thoughtfully formulated and adopted the nomenclature, Institute Of Leadership For Policy Implementation (the word For, meaning 'support for'), to clearly signify that the organization's vision, mission, and mandate are basically underpinned on the support for, or promotion of good leadership (political or corporate), people- focused policy formulation and implementation, aimed at providing the long-elusive transformative leadership and leadership dividends delivery in proportion to the nation's staggering and myriad natural gifts.

This is why the institute raises proposals tied to the policies of various government agencies, such as the NNPC, which seek to forge interface between the agencies and the people for the implementation of those policies for the benefit of the society.

CAC Registration

Having met all the official registration requirements, the Institute Of Leadership For Policy Implementation was duly incorporated at the Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC) under the Companies and Allied Matters Act 1990, as a Company Limited By Guarantee with RC: 1609397, on 15th August, 2019 (refer to attached CAC Certificate of Incorporation, please.)

Operational Set-up

The full attainment of the 6-point agenda by the founding 7- man board of subscribers/directors was realized on the 20th of October, 2020, when the operational office of the institute was formally set up and officially inaugurated in Abuja, Federal Capital Territory, by the ILPI President, Professor A.N Akwanya, supported by the other board members and a handful of invited dignitaries cutting across the federal and FCT bureaucracy.

During the ceremony a board member, Engr. Emeka Nwokolo – a 1987 graduate of metallurgical and materials engineering, with decades of professional and diverse administrative experience cutting across the public and private sectors – was appointed as the ILPI Executive Vice-President to head the organization, charged with the overall strategy, direction, and management responsibilities.

Overview/Mission Statement

The Institute Of Leadership For Policy Implementation (ILPI) was conceived and established against the backdrop of Nigeria's lingering unimpressive political and corporate leadership culture, which has over the decades failed to mount the nation's developmental trajectory on the strong wings of her huge and highly diversified natural resources for a transformed society in all ramifications.

A thoughtful walk down Nigeria's lane of several decades of political independence readily paints a gloomy picture of a nation in the regrettable throes of untapped, neglected, and wasted resources waiting to be harnessed and fed into the developmental process for the advancement of the people's living standard. It also reveals realities of great policy formulations in several areas of our national life that inexplicably fail to deliver the intended dividends at the implementation stage even when all the enabling resources are made available. The results: scanty and often substandard indices of physical development that hardly reflect the huge financial and other resources poured into the implementation process; abandoned projects running into trillions of naira; an army of beneficiaries of sterile human capital development bereft of relevance and practical know-how; widespread poverty, ignorance, insecurity, and diseases symptomatic of a state of anomie; and a geo-political space terribly lean in major indices of global competitiveness taken for granted in far less endowed but better led climes.

To help reverse the ever worsening ugly developmental narrative in the land, the purpose, goals, and values of the Institute Of Leadership For Policy Implementation (ILPI) are roundly underpinned on:

- 1. The time-tested truth generally attested to by all schools of thought in the leadership field of study that everything rises or falls on leadership;
- 2. The fact that leadership is all about influence, meaning that leadership can make or mar any geo-political or organizational entity;
- 3. The undeniable fact that unless and until the Nigerian political leadership and its entire institutional framework purge themselves of the wrong definition of leadership as an unaccountable tool for personal gain, aligning the definition with the correct universal perspective of leadership as a vehicle for overall societal transformation for the common good, and intentionally summon the political will and forthrightness to dutifully carry out policy implementation in all areas of our national life, all the beautiful policy formulations on paper will avail the nation little or nothing in the end. This point obviously buttresses two palpable truths:

(i) that the leadership complexion (positive or negative) exhibited on the altar of leadership of any nation or organization is a true reflection of the innate personality traits or make-up of the leader on the leadership saddle; and

(ii) that any society could be likened to a stream in its physical setting, in which it would amount to an illusion to expect clean water downstream when the water upstream is muddied.

Taking cognizance of the afore-listed leadership truths, and aware that our organization's underpinning purpose, goals, and values are primed to contribute to the national quest for a positive change in leadership, policy formulation, and implementation for the overall national development in proportion to the country's huge endowments, the ILPI management commits to making the change through the instrumentalities of:

1. Leadership and civic education dissemination, reorientation to purge leadership and institutional players of pre-conceived inhibitive ideas of the old practice perspectives, capacity building to enhance efficiency and productivity, articulation and dissemination of ideas, recognition and reward through conferment of excellence awards and the ILPI Fellowship (FILPI) on organizations and personalities who have made outstanding impact in their various areas of endeavor, organization of conferences, workshops, and symposia.

2. Promotion of people-focused and transformative policy formulation and implementation, and advocacy for ennobling causes.

3. Collaborations and partnerships with the organized private sector, local and international development partners and donors, government ministries, departments, and agencies for the benefit of both the masses and the collaborating entities.

4. Identifying critical but often neglected needs within the larger society/communities and fostering the necessary policy implementation interfaces between the communities and the relevant policy owners/implementers, such as local and international bodies or government agencies, essentially aimed at helping translate those policies from mere paper-work to concrete policy dividends delivery as originally intended by the formulation for the common good.

Our Objectives/Goals

The objectives for which ILPI is established are:

1. To engage in the critical analysis, advocacy, monitoring, and evaluation of public sector policy implementation efforts, contract awards, programs, projects, and services to ensure conformity with due diligence, due process, and global best practices for quality service delivery as originally intended by the policy formulation.

2. To forge strategic partnerships and collaborations with government agencies, corporate organizations, and development partners towards the implementation of their existing policies in various areas of our national life at the grassroots for the common good.

3. To regularly organize round-table forums of policy analysts, formulators, and executors for critical and in-depth analysis and evaluation of public sector policies with a view to addressing their inherent strengths and weaknesses, and pointing the way to more cost-effective and result-oriented implementation strategies.

- 4. To freely access information on the entire national policy formulation and implementation processes, and objectively analyze and disseminate such information to the public.
- 5. To engage in concerted and unbiased advocacy for evenly spread policy implementation by all levels of government for the attainment of equitable development, peaceful co-existence and national unity.
- 6. To promote the entrenchment of good corporate governance in our national life.
- 7. To create awareness in the polity that policy formulation and implementation is the No. 1 duty of government, and the very basis for the justification of government existence, and should be seen as an inviolable social contract binding the government and the governed.
- 8. To develop, via tailored education and training, the requisite capacities and skills for policy formation, management, implementation, analysis, monitoring and evaluation.
- 9. To promote the encouragement, development and preservation of noble national values, legacies, icons, monuments, and good citizenship through institutionalizations, mobilization, orientation, education, public enlightenment, biographical writing and historical compilations.
- 10. To carry out both local and international capacity building through tailored education, workshops, and conferences for public and private sector players, and issue certificates of participation to participants.
- 11. To do all such other things as may be considered incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects or any of them.

Our Vision

To rate leadership on policy formulation and implementation through monitoring and evaluation of government programs and projects.

Our Mission

To promote the entrenchment of transformative leadership culture of service delivery and accountability through reorientation, leadership education, and capacity building.

Our Mandate

Through carrying out leadership education, reorientation, capacity building, articulation and dissemination of ideas, recognition, and reward for excellence, the ILPI mandate is centered on promoting good political and corporate leadership, driven by people- focused and transformative policy formulation and implementation for a happier society. Our mandate is strongly anchored on the universal truth expressed by all leadership schools of thought that “everything rises or falls on leadership”, leadership being all about influence that can make or mar any nation or organization.

Our Motto

Leadership and policy implementation are sacred and inseparable twin tools for service.

Our Core Values

The core values which guide our organization’s corporate behavior or decision making are rooted in:

- Integrity: being mindful of the ILPI corporate image by always doing what we say we will do, how we say we will do it, and when we say we will do it, realizing that one good turn deserves another;

- Timeliness : committed to delivering services, programs, or projects strictly in line with stipulated delivery timelines;
- Quality : we do not cut corners; our services are delivered to guarantee satisfaction by strictly adhering to laid down specifications in quality and quantity;
- Expertise : we demonstrate expertise in the conceptualization and development of intended (proposed) service provision, and engage cutting-edge know-how in both manpower and technology to execute same;
- Service : we liaise with the policy owners (government agencies, the organized private sector, local and international development partners/donors, etc) to foster the implementation of their policies or corporate social responsibilities in critical areas of societal needs for the common good;
- Governance : we are sticklers for good corporate governance or pragmatic leadership in service delivery, tacitly committing to the time-honored leadership credo: everything rises or falls on leadership;
- Efficiency : we operate at an optimum level of measurable performance, conscious of time and energy;
- Transparency : we are open to public scrutiny, shunning graft and dishonesty in our dealings; and
- Accountability: ILPI pays attention to details in service conceptualization, planning, and delivery; takes full responsibility for our actions; and gives regular verifiable clear-cut feedback as service delivery progresses; and submits programs-end reports to government agencies or organizations that collaborate/partner with the institute on such programs.

Core Service Areas

- 1. Promotion of good leadership, people-focused policy formulation and implementation in governance.
- 2. Monitoring and evaluation of public and organized private sectors leadership to check conformity with due diligence, due process, and international best practices.
- 3. Leadership and civic education dissemination, as well as good leadership advocacy.
- 4. Research, articulation and dissemination of ideas for result-oriented leadership.
- 5. Reorientation, gender and youth inclusion advocacy, capacity building, conferences, workshops, and creation of interface between the government and the grassroots through sensitization necessary for government policy implementation.
- 6. Conferment of the prestigious ILPI Fellowship (FILPI) and tailored excellence awards on good leaders.

Collaborating and Partnering with Government Agencies, Corporate Organizations, and Experts

Besides our organization's commitment to advocacy for transformative and people-oriented policy formulation in Nigeria, we relentlessly drive our all-encompassing promotion or support for service delivery through effective policy implementation in all facets of our national life. We do this by building relationships and fostering collaborations and partnerships with experts in various fields of endeavor on one hand, and relevant government agencies and corporate entities on the other.

This partnership or collaborative engagement entails a 6-step process:

- 1. The ILPI, through field research, identifies societal/communal areas of need, clearly capturing a statement of the problem on paper;
- 2. The institute seeks out and liaises with the right ministries, departments, or agencies of government, or corporate organizations with the relevant policy which implementation is designed to provide solution to the identified areas of need;
- 3. As an intellectual organization, the ILPI, backed by in-house research findings, casts a clear-cut vision on paper in the form of a tentative working proposal on how to practically proffer solutions to those areas of need;
- 4. The institute invites and collaborates or partners with the relevant experts to professionally critique and fine-tune the proposal, rolling out the authoritative copy or copies for submission to the relevant collaborating government agency or corporate organization;
- 5. ILPI submits and follows up on the proposal, and subsequently liaises with the experts to carry out the Proposal Presentation and Defence when the government agency or corporate entity calls for it; and
- 6. Finally, upon approval of the proposal, the ILPI wholly liaises with the collaborating experts to carry out the field service delivery in accordance with the agreed timelines, specifications, terms, and conditions, ultimately wrapping up the process by compiling and submitting well-written copies of Service Delivery Conclusion Report to the collaborating government agency or corporate organization.

Recognition and Reward for Accomplishments

To encourage excellence in leadership in both public and private sectors of our national life, the ILPI recognizes, nominates, and rewards individual and organizations for outstanding accomplishments with various highly coveted excellence awards and the prestigious ILPI Fellowship (FILPI.) Recommendations and self-nominations by personalities and organizations for these awards are also welcome, subject to qualification screening by the ILPI Induction and Award Committee.

Our Past Activities

The institute's past activities cut across several sectors of the national bureaucratic policy implementation programs and our organizational in-house efforts aimed at encouraging good leadership in all facets of our national life.

Constrained by space, some of those activities have been classified hereunder into three broad areas and pictorially represented as follows:

[A.] Targeted Healthcare Intervention and Enlightenment Programs aimed at promoting the national comprehensive and inclusive healthcare objective and the WHO global pursuit of health for all:

Early 2021, the institute initiated and signed a collaborative working relationship with the FCT chapter of the National Council for Women Societies (NCWS). The working relationship enjoins the ILPI, as an intellectual and research organization, to raise relevant proposals tied to the various Federal Capital Territory Administration's (FCTA) policy implementation programs, especially in the areas of education, health, gender and youth inclusion.

Based on the bi-party arrangement, our "Proposed 3-Day Free Medical Outreach and Tailored Town-hall Healthcare Education for the Elderly in FCT" addressed to the Mandate Secretary of the FCTA Social Development Secretariat (SDS), was approved and sponsored by the SDS. The 3 – day program took place 5th – 7th November, 2021 at the SDS premises, Cyprian Ekwensi Center for Arts and Culture, Area 10, Garki, Abuja, attracted over 3,000 beneficiaries.
